A person is walking away from the camera on a sandy dune path that leads towards the ocean. The path is marked with footprints. The dunes are covered in green and yellow vegetation. The ocean is visible in the distance under a bright, hazy sky. The word "THRIVE" is written in large, white, brush-stroke style letters across the sand in the foreground.

Research shows magazine purchase is high in New Zealand as readers like to keep up to date with new ideas to improve their lives and those of their family and friends.

Of New Zealand women in the post-Covid world ...

Our Audience

Thrive readers are women who come in all ages, all sizes and represent our rich and diverse cultures across New Zealand. They are rural and urban, down to earth and centred, interested in making change as well as keeping the home a safe and creative space. Thrive readers are hungry for information that is trustworthy and uncomplicated. They are always on the lookout for new ways to do things and make a difference. Thrive delivers the right audience across several demographics to reach a unique combination of size, affluence, passions and engagement of the wellbeing lifestyle market in New Zealand.

THRIVE

Our Editorial Vision

Thrive is a magazine about wellbeing, health, and sustainable living. The Thrive woman is in her 40s or 50s. She is interested in health and wellbeing; that includes general health and nutrition; food; mental health and psychology. She's also interested in environment and sustainability; in that she cares about doing the right thing by the environment; she cares about recycling and not wasting things and not using plastic and generally being 'good'. She's likely to be a gardener, or at least grow vegetables. She may have school-aged kids at home - probably intermediate or high school aged.

She has a busy life. She's probably working; she has all the commitments of a typical midlife woman when it comes to family, friends, community and working life, which is to say: pretty bloody busy. She cares about what's going on in the world. She is interested in living simply and treading lightly. She's possibly a 'guilty greenie' - she wants to always make sustainable choices, but sometimes life gets in the way. The same goes for her health. She's smart; she wants to be challenged and surprised by what she reads in Thrive, but she also wants practical ideas and inspiration for how to live truly well in every sense.

Our Pillars

Healthy body

Feeling empowered to keep our bodies well comes from learning about how to nurture them. Thrive features the latest science-based stories on health, nutrition and exercise to inspire.

Healthy mind

Nurturing our mental health is a key part of overall wellbeing. Thrive features expert advice and insight on the latest in psychology and mental health.

Healthy environment

There are no healthy people on an unhealthy planet. Thrive focuses on the important environmental topics we all need to know about, and offers practical solutions to everyday dilemmas.

Growing and eating

Food is not just fuel; it's one of life's great joys. It's also key to how well we are in body and mind. Thrive features great ideas on growing and cooking your own delicious, nutritious food and inspiration for eating well for life.

Inspiring change

Making conscious choices that are great for us and the planet can be hard! Thrive helps make those choices easy with expert advice and tips on home, fashion, beauty and food.

Inspiring people

Thrive celebrates those doing good in our communities by bringing you their stories and creations. Think inspiring humans doing cool things all over Aotearoa and the world.

THRIVE

Our Platforms
